It's on the bottom of my grill, which I put there to cook but can't find what it is. I don't know what to do with it. Can anyone help? A: It's called a bottom duct and is connected to the vent system to dry out grease. As long as it's not releasing any smoke or any other smelly stuff it's probably just fine to leave it there. It's also perfectly safe to leave it there while you're grilling. I'm 8-and-a-half months pregnant and still dieting. Is it OK to keep working out? "I don't think you should have to give up. I don't think that's the way to go about it. You should be able to exercise and eat healthy as well. I think that's the most effective way of getting in shape and keeping fit during pregnancy." — Dr. Amy

Farber, OB-GYN at New York Presbyterian/Weill Cornell "A lot of people don't want to exercise during pregnancy, but it's great to get moving. The best thing is to do something you love. I was doing yoga and weight training, but I was being really strict with myself, I was counting calories, and I wasn't getting a lot of rest." — Jenni Minar "You want to work out and be healthy and lose the baby weight, and that's not always possible." — Jeanne Prewitt, OB-GYN at Lenox Hill Hospital "Exercise is always going to be better for you than not exercising, so you need to exercise." — Dr. Matthew Lorber, OB-GYN at Lenox Hill Hospital "It's just a physiological thing that the body does, so it makes sense that your exercise and your food intake would be decreased when you're pregnant. It's a time when you want to increase your energy, your endurance, and the stamina
